

Resolutions for the region

With 2014 likely to hold some important issues for the Fleurieu Peninsula, The Times asks local political members and council mayors their resolutions for the new year, for both themselves and the region.

Kym McHugh

Alexandrina Council Mayor

Moving the Fleurieu Regional Aquatic Centre forward with the City of Victor Harbor will be one of Alexandrina's main aims for 2014. Having a prosperous region and a happy and safe community are also on the list. A personal resolution for Mayor McHugh is to spend more time with his family.

Malcolm Schlein

District Council of Yankalilla Mayor

Brightening the Yankalilla district and generally improving each town's appearance are on Malcolm's list of tasks for 2014. The council is hoping to have the bridge over Bungala Park at Normanville built this year.

Graham Philp

City of Victor Harbor Mayor

Keeping the district moving forward and encouraging the community to shop local are on Mayor Philp's agenda for 2014.

He wants to make shopping locally at every opportunity his personal goal as well. He said local business supports the community and the local economy and employs local people.

Michael Pengilly

Member for Finniss

With an election just weeks away, Pengilly wants the Liberals to be elected to government. He wants expanded education at the Victor Harbor TAFE, and improve and increased medical services at South Coast District Hospital.

Road upgrades, especially on the Myponga to Yankalilla Road, and on the Victor Harbor Road between Mosquito Hill to Hindmarsh Tiers roads are priorities. He wants red and green tape cut for primary industries and small business.

Adrian Pederick

Member for Hammond

Pederick wants to see improved health services and better access to medical advice in the area. He also wants to see prioritised infrastructure rather than lower speed limits on country roads, and better handling of the state's budget and economy. Growing tourism in the Fleurieu, in particular the Coorong and Eastern Fleurieu are on his agenda.

Jamie Briggs

Federal member for Mayo

Living in a country that lives within its means and delivers a stronger economy for all South Australians are on Jamie's list.

On the home front, he wants to be the best father he can be to Elka, Henry and Scarlett.
