

The State Liberals will investigate opportunities for strategic clearing of roadside trees following the deaths of 10 people in tree impacts during the past year.

The move follows the Motor Accident Commission's (MAC) calls to clear roadside trees in high-risk zones.

"After last year's horror road toll, it is important to take all reasonable steps to reduce fatalities on South Australian roads," said opposition spokesman for road safety Corey Wingard.

"Drivers do make mistakes, and clearing roadside trees in high-risk zones is one way to avoid a momentary mistake turning into a serious injury, or fatality.

"The State Liberals understand the importance of trees to our environment, so for every high-risk tree removed and unable to be relocated, native trees would be planted in safe zones across the state.

"This is a reasonable and responsible policy which will save lives each year, every year."

Pederick's 'Finn's Law'

Member for Hammond, Adrian Pederick, has re-introduced a Private Member's Bill in State Parliament to amend the Statutes Amendment (Rights of Foster Parents and Guardians) Bill 2015.

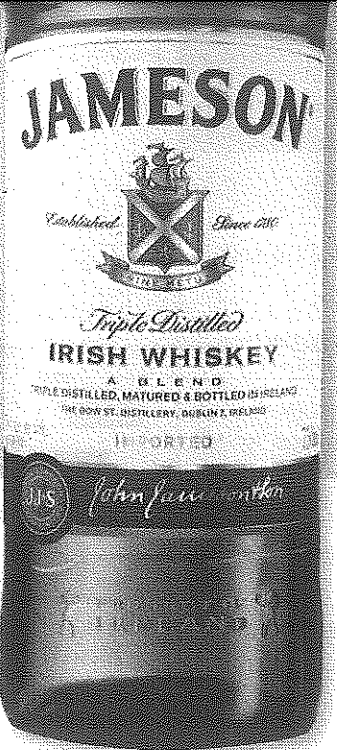

The Bill, known as Finn's Law, would give foster parents the option to be recognised on a death certificate if a child dies in their care and also give them the chance to be involved in funeral arrangements.

The current legislation states that only the biological parents are provided with the rights of the child including details such as reason for passing and funeral arrangements.

"If successful, there are approximately 1800 foster parents who will gain new rights as a result of a campaign fought by Monica Perrett," Mr Pederick said.

"This Bill is challenging because it breaks new ground, but I believe we as a Parliament should do the right thing by foster parents and foster children.

"I will continue the fight for Finn's Law to become legislation."
